Second

Covishield COVID – 19 Vaccination Camp

9th September 2021

Background

SARS-CoV-2 has caused a worldwide health and social crisis, primarily because of the large number of deaths and the heavy pressure on healthcare systems due to so many individuals being hospitalized and in need of intensive care. Surveillance data shows that up to 90% of deaths and 80% of hospitalizations have occurred in older adults and persons with underlying conditions. From a societal perspective, if these groups were to be effectively protected against severe COVID-19, there would be a substantial decrease in bed occupancy and deaths and the pressure on the healthcare system would be significantly reduced. If the initial objective of the vaccination strategy is to exit emergency status, the vaccination of all older adults is the most efficient and effective approach. Societal and health problems caused by COVID-19 would be far from over but the instigating factor for the unprecedented global hiatus would be removed. As this vaccination approach is implemented, effective non-pharmaceutical interventions should be maintained, since transmission and disease will continue and other vulnerable groups will still be at risk. The identification and characterization of emerging variants of concern remains important.

Objectives of the Camp:

- To contain the spread of COVID – 19
- To reduce overall severity and mortality
- To facilitate reopening of society and resume normal activities
- To reduce pressure on the healthcare system
