Background

Skill development is important because skills determine the ability to execute the plans with success. Skill training not only provides skills in a particular area, but trains them to build and enhance networking, time management, etc.

PG and Research Department of Biotechnology is regularly offering various hands on training on molecular techniques, identification of herbal plants etc with the motto of become "Job Providers not Job Seekers". The programme "One day Skill development Programme for Biotechnology students on Cultivation of Spirulina and Mushrooms" is a golden opportunity for the students of both UG & PG Biotechnology. This programme will empower the aspiring students to become self entrepreneurs.

Objectives

1. To create awareness among the biotechnology students to cultivate mushroom and spirulina for trade and also for their food and nutritional security.
2. To impart hands on training on Spirulina and Mushroom cultivation.
3. To make the students to become self entrepreneurs in Spirulina and Mushroom production.

Programme Report

One Day workshop on "Skill development in Mushroom and Spirulina Production" was organized by the PG and Research Department of Biotechnology, Islamiah College (Autonomous), Vaniyambadi for Biotechnology students on 08th December 2021.

This programme was convened by Dr. H. Abdul Jaffar Ali, Assistant Professor & Head, Department of Biotechnology, Islamiah College (Autonomous), Vaniyambadi.

Programme : "Internship Program"

Date : 22nd December, 2021 to 06th January 2022.

REPORT

The Department of Biochemistry arranged Internship Program to VANITEC (Vaniyambadi Talco environmental control system Ltd), 183, Kutchery Road Extension Road, Valayambet, Vaniyambadi – 635751. From 22nd December, 2021 to 06th January 2022. Forty five students of II year B.Sc., Biochemistry and three staff members visited the effluent treatment plant.

On the first day of Internship programme, the Students assembled at the college premises at 9.30am on 22-12-2021 and proceeded to VANITEC and reached safely by 10am.

Daily in the morning session all the students were taken to seminar hall and were given a lecture about effluent treatment process by Mr. Nazeer, Technical manager, VANITEC. He explained about various treatment processes till its discharge as portable water. With the implementation of the Zero Liquid Discharge System, the Common Effluent Treatment Plant has stopped the discharge of its effluent into the River Palar. Every day in the afternoon session the students were taken to treatment plant. The wastewater is treated through a 4-Stage process whereby the water is completely recovered and reused by its member-tanneries and crystalline salt is recovered and stored for safe disposal. The 4-Stage process comprises of the following components.

1. Physicochemical effluent water treatment is a process that involves using various physical and chemical methods to treat wastewater or effluent before it is discharged into the environment or reused. This type of treatment aims to remove contaminants, pollutants, and suspended solids from the water to make it safe for disposal or reuse. Here are some common physicochemical methods used in effluent water treatment.
2. Biological effluent water treatment is a process that uses naturally occurring microorganisms, bacteria, and other biological agents to degrade and remove organic and inorganic pollutants from wastewater or effluent. This method harnesses the power of biological processes to break down contaminants and purify the water before it is released into the environment or reused for various purposes. Here are some key components and processes involved in biological effluent water treatment.

3. Desalination is the process of removing salt and other impurities from seawater or brackish water to produce fresh water that is suitable for various uses, including drinking, irrigation, and industrial processes. One of the most widely used methods for desalination is Reverse Osmosis (RO).
4. Thermal evaporators are industrial devices used for separating dissolved solids from liquids through the process of evaporation. These evaporators are particularly effective for treating wastewater or process streams with high concentrations of dissolved solids, such as brine from desalination plants, industrial effluents, and other solutions containing salts or minerals. Thermal evaporators work by heating the liquid to a high temperature, causing the solvent (usually water) to evaporate and leaving behind concentrated solids.

The students evinced keen interest in knowing all the aspects of tannery effluent treatment. The visit to VANITEC was very useful for the students.

We express sincere thanks to the management and particularly respected secretary and correspondent and respected principal for their unflinching support and constant encouragement.

REPORT

The Department of Biochemistry arranged for an industrial visit to VANITEC (Vaniyambadi Talco environmental control system Ltd), 183, Kutchery Road Extension Road, Valayambet Vaniyambadi - 635751. For the students of II B.Sc., Biochemistry on 18th February 2019. Forty five students of II year B.Sc., Biochemistry and three staff members visited the effluent treatment plant.

Students assembled at the college premises at 9.30am on 18-02-2019 and proceeded to VANITEC and reached safely by 10am.

The wastewater is treated through a 4-Stage process whereby the water is completely recovered and reused by its member-tanneries and crystalline salt is recovered and stored for safe disposal. The 4-Stage process comprises of the following components - Primary Stage - For removal of coarse debris and suspended solids, Secondary Stage - For the degradation of dissolved organics in the wastewater and thereby making it relatively benign, Based on Membrane Bio Reactor technology, Tertiary Stage - Removal of remnant dissolved inorganics and organics and delivering 70% of very clean water that measure up to drinking water standards and Final Stage - Evaporation of 30% of the balance of "rejects" in a multiple-effect evaporator for crystallization of the inorganic salts that would go for storage or for possible reuse

The student and staff member visited Common effluent treatment plant. Then the students evinced keen interest in knowing all the aspects of tannery effluent treatment. The visit to VANITEC was very useful for the students.

At the end of the visit we reached to college by 5pm. We express sincere thanks to the management and particularly respected secretary and correspondent and respected principal for their unflinching support and constant encouragement.
